

Psych Alliance events:

1) Thursday, March 7th at 8:00pm, the USC (University of Southern California) School of Social Work will be holding an online information session specifically for Rutgers students interested in learning about a Master's degree in Social Work. USC has both in-person and online programs, so if you are interested in clinical psychology or counseling/therapy, this is a great opportunity to learn about the programs USC offers. Keep in mind, Master's degrees in Social Work are a great way to get into counseling/therapy if you aren't necessarily interested in pursuing a doctoral degree! The link to register for this webinar event is here: <https://register.gotowebinar.com/register/482181325753478657>

2) Next week, Tuesday, March 12th at 8:00pm in the Livingston Student Center Gathering Lounge, Psych Alliance will be hosting its annual Professional Panel. Come join us for this panel in which working professionals will answer questions and provide their experiences from working in different areas of psychology and psychology-related disciplines. Students interested in learning about possible careers that could come from their psychology degree are strongly encouraged to attend. Also, free pizza will be provided for anyone in attendance! A flyer for the event is attached to this email. Please feel free to invite anyone who you think would be interested in attending!
