How do individuals and societies remember and how do they forget? Memory—the process of recalling the past—can fail for many different reasons. But often, memory is strongest when attached to a loss. Consider registering for this exciting course:

Trauma, Memory, Loss (ANTHRO 380) Spring 2020
Professor Parvis Ghassem-Fachandi
Mon/Thurs 9:15-10:35 am

This class will explore the process of remembering through major thinkers such as Sigmund Freud, Maurice Halbwachs, Roland Barthes, and Judith Butler, engaging with anthropology, literature, and moving pictures.