Course Description

Welcome to Psychology 101. Psychology is the scientific study of human behavior and experience. This course will introduce you to the various topics and issues in the scientific exploration of mind and behavior. Topics will include research methods, biological psychology, sensation and perception, developmental psychology, learning and memory, cognition, intelligence, consciousness, emotions, social psychology, personality psychology, and abnormal and clinical psychology. Along the way, you will discover what psychologists have learned that can enrich your studies, your relationships, your health, and other important aspects of your life.

This course has been certified as satisfying the Social Analysis (SCL) Learning Outcome Goal of the SAS Core Curriculum. Specifically, students will be able to:

II.B.i: Explain and be able to assess the relationship among assumptions, method, evidence, arguments, and theory in social and historical analysis.

II.B.n: Apply concepts about human and social behavior to particular questions or situations.

This course also satisfies the following Psychology Department Learning Goals:

- Students will know the leading terms, concepts, theoretical perspectives, empirical findings, and historical trends in psychology.

- Students will apply psychological concepts and content to become engaged citizens.
- Students will use critical thinking, skeptical inquiry, and, when possible, the scientific approach to ask, answer and understand questions related to behavior and mental processes.

Make-up Policy

Make-up exams will be given if the exam is missed for a legitimate reason (e.g. illness). There will be no make-ups or extensions for homework, participation, or experimental credits.

Research Participation Requirement

Research is an essential part of the field of psychology. It is important for students to be exposed to either actual participation as a subject in an experiment, or at the very least, to learn from technical articles how research is done. Therefore, all sections of General Psychology require either five "Research Participation Units" of experiment participation or an alternative assignment of writing two papers describing psychological research. The psychology department's Human Research Student Requirements web page explains exactly what you must do.

To sign up as a subject for experiments, to cancel an appointment you have already made, to find out how many Research Participation Units you've earned so far, or to contact a researcher for any reason, go to the Human Subject Pool System web site.

If you choose to write the 2 papers instead of participating in experiments, you must submit the first paper on or before the midpoint of the course (submit by October 21) and you must submit the second paper on or before the last lecture date (last lecture = December 2).

See the Human Research Student Requirements web page (scroll down to the Option 2 section) for the specific requirements for the papers (including how you must format your papers, what journals are acceptable as sources for your articles, etc.).

For more information, see Frequently Asked Questions about Research Participation.
