Office hours: Tuesday 12-1 and by appointment

Text: Schermer, Michael (2004). The Science of Good and Evil. New York: Holt

ISBN: 0-8050-7769-3

This class will explore theory and research related to moral beliefs and behaviors. The goal of the course is to (a) survey moral belief systems across time and culture, (b) review classic philosophical explanations of morality, (c) examine past and present psychological theories of moral behavior, and (d) consider how moral beliefs impact behavior, particularly when people confront moral dilemmas. Readings from online sources and material posted at sakai supplement the text chapters.

Evaluation: Course grade will be based on the following:

Class attendance:	10
(1 point for every class you attend up to 10 classes)
Class exercises, news articles, and homework:	30
Class presentation and power points:	30
Final exam :	20
Total:	90 points

Class attendance (10): Classes will focus on discussion of readings. I will supplement that with other material, but this is not a lecture class. The topic of moral beliefs is intrinsically interesting and certainly important to our sense of self-identity and how we behave. For the class to function well, you must attend regularly and be prepared to participate

Class exercises (15): There will be a few homework exercises to complete over the course of the semester. These exercises are thought problems and brief questionnaires. Your anonymous responses will be used in class to illustrate some of the issues we discuss in the course. These assignments will be announced in class and posted at sakai. Each will be worth a couple of points.

News articles (15): Email me a news article on the following days 6/7, 6/14, 6/21 (3 articles total) from an online source that involves a moral decision, dilemma, or issue. Accompany each with a short statement of the moral issues at stake. We will discuss some of them in class and relate them to the topics under discussion.

Class Presentation and Power points (25): We will be covering a fairly wide range of material. Your assignment is to select some area of moral beliefs and explore it in more detail than we have time to do in class. Then prepare a 15 minute presentation for the class to be given during the 6/28 and 6/30 classes. The presentation should be based on a set of power point slides. A copy of your slides should be sent to me on the day of your presentation. Your presentation can be an in depth review of a psychological theory of morality; it can be a review of research; it can be a proposal for research (e.g., planning an experiment). I want to give you as much latitude as possible to pursue a question or topic that interests you.

Final exam (20): The final exam will be an online essay on the last class date 7/7. I will give you details of what it covers along with time limits later in class.

Date	Topics
5/31	Overview and class exercises
6/2	Moral behavior: what we believe Questions for class: What is the origin of moral beliefs? What do polls tell us? What do religions say? Are there universal morals?
6/7	Western philosophical positions Questions for class: Historically, Western philosophy has taken 4 approaches to conceptualizing moral beliefs. What are they? How do they relate to religious approaches?
6/9	Sentiment approach: Grounded in Evolution? Questions for class: What is the functional argument for the development of moral beliefs? Is it the same as the evolutionary argument?
6/14	Questions of Evil and Free Will Questions for class: Why is evil such a vexing problem for some approaches to morality? Is free will necessary for moral behavior?
6/16	Shermer's Provisional Morality Applications to campus and politics Question for class: How does Shermer's Provisional Morality fit with other theories? How are moral beliefs predictive of political attitudes? Do professors practice moral bias?

6/21	Morality of Animals
	Questions for class: Is morality restricted to humans? Can animals make moral choices? If so, what are the implications for theories of the origin of moral beliefs?
6/23	Moral Development

Assignments and Readings --

For 6/2:

1. <http://www.debate.org/opinions/is-there-a-universal-moral-code>

Debate.org asks people whether or not there is a universal moral code. Your task is to read a few pages of opinions and then select the one you find most compelling on each side (one “yes” opinion and one “no” opinion). Make a copy, bring it to class, and be prepared to explain which one you find the most persuasive.

2. <http://www.gallup.com/poll/1681/Moral-Issues.aspx>
3. <http://www.gallup.com/poll/183413/americans-continue-shift-left-key-moral-issues.aspx>
4. <http://www.gallup.com/poll/137357/four-moral-issues-sharply-divide-americans.aspx>

Gallup polls that examines change in moral beliefs between 2002 and 2016 Which issue has changed the most? Which the least? Which one most surprises you?

5. <http://personal.tcu.edu/pwitt/Universal%20Values.pdf>

Article looks for evidence of common values in major religions. Would you add/subtract any from what they propose? What are the strengths and weaknesses of their archival analysis?
