Textbook: Myers, D. G., & Twenge, J. M. SOCIAL PSYCHOLOGY, McGraw Hill, 12th ed. (2016) (10th or 11th edition can be substituted)

Overview

This course surveys the major topic areas within social psychology. Social psychologists study how the thoughts, feelings, and actions of individuals influence and are influenced by the behavior of others. The goal of the course is to introduce you to theories and research that explain social interaction among people.

Topics are organized into 4 units with an exam following each of them. The first unit covers the topics of self and social cognition (essentially how our social environment creates us and how we make sense of it). The second unit addresses social influence. The third and fourth units focus on interpersonal behavior. Specific topics, reading assignments, and exam dates are on page 5 of this syllabus.

The text covers more topics than I will have time to develop in class. Consequently, there will be some material presented in the text that I will not address in class. Similarly, I will develop some of the topics in greater detail than what is discussed in the text as well as introduce theory and research not touched on in the text. Class lectures and the text are adjuncts, not clones of one another.

Sakai course site: Power point slides covering some of the lecture material will be posted at Resources at the Sakai site. These slides are intended to serve as a guide for the lectures; they are a subset of what will be covered in class and do not substitute for attendance. My advice is to print the slides before class so that additional notes can be added to them in class. Announcements will be posted at Sakai, and exam scores will be available at Sakai gradebook.

Evaluation: Your grade will be based on the total number of points accumulated from 4 exams (three class exams and a final exam) worth a total of 280 points and 10 points of class surveys. Total points = 290. (There will also be an opportunity to earn 10 points of extra credit on the final exam.).

Exams (280 points): There will be 3 hourly exams and a final exam. Each hourly exam will contain 70 multiple choice items. The final will consist of 80 multiple choice items divided up as follows: 60 from material discussed in the last quarter of the course, 10 from either chapter 14 or 15 (your choice), 10 extra credit questions.

Class surveys (10 points): I will ask you to complete a couple of brief surveys. Results will be discussed in class. The first survey will be given at the 1st class (Thurs, 1/18).

Extra credit (10 points): There will be 10 points of questions that can be used for extra credit on the final exam.

Missed exams: If you miss an exam because of illness or family emergency, contact the teaching assistant to schedule a make-up and provide her with documentation (e.g., doctor's note, accident report). I will be available outside of class to discuss the content of the course, your performance on exams, and any other academic matters. The TA will handle missed exams.

Grades: The following cutoffs will be used for grades: 261 and above A (90% of 290); 252-260 B+ (87%); 232-251 B (80%); 223-231 C+ (77%); 203-222 C (80%); 174-202 D (60%). (The grade cutoffs are based on 290 points although with extra credit you could earn as many as 300 points. However, I may adjust the scale depending on class performance. The final grade cutoffs will be no more stringent than those listed here.)

Classroom behavior: To minimize disruption to others and to protect my fragile ego, please do not use your phone or computer for tasks unrelated to the course. Feel free to ask questions and add relevant information from other classes.

Integrity: In addition to the University's integrity policy as described below, you may not have your cell phone, computer, or any papers and books on your desk during an exam. If you need to use the restroom during an exam, leave your phone with me or the TA.

Rutgers definition of plagiarism:

Plagiarism is the use of another person's words, ideas, or results without giving that person appropriate credit. To avoid plagiarism, every direct quotation must be identified by quotation marks or appropriate indentation and both direct quotation and paraphrasing must be cited properly according to the accepted format for the particular discipline or as required by the instructor in a course. Some common examples of plagiarism are:

- Copying word for word (i.e. quoting directly) from an oral, printed, or electronic source without proper attribution.

- Paraphrasing without proper attribution, i.e., presenting in one's own words another person's written words or ideas as if they were one's own.
- Submitting a purchased or downloaded term paper or other materials to satisfy a course requirement.
- Incorporating into one's work graphs, drawings, photographs, diagrams, tables, spreadsheets, computer programs, or other nontextual material from other sources without proper attribution.

Rutgers University welcomes students with disabilities into all of the University's educational programs. In order to receive consideration for reasonable accommodations, a student with a disability must contact the appropriate disability services office at the campus where you are officially enrolled, participate in an intake interview, and provide documentation: <https://ods.rutgers.edu/students/documentation-guidelines>. If the documentation supports your request for reasonable accommodations, your campus's disability services office will provide you with a Letter of Accommodations. Please share this letter with your instructors and discuss the accommodations with them as early in your courses as possible. To begin this process, please complete the Registration form on the ODS web site at: <https://ods.rutgers.edu/students/registration-form>.
