Text: L. Benjamin, A Brief History of Modern Psychology. Wiley-Blackwell 2nd ed (2017)
(or the edition published in 2014)

This course surveys the growth of Psychology as an academic and applied discipline in the Western world with a focus on the U.S. The goals of the course are to familiarize you with the major ideas that have shaped the development of Psychology and to provide a context for the paths Psychology has taken over the past century. Although the formal discipline of Psychology did not emerge until late in the 19th century, we will begin by tracing its roots in the domains of Philosophy and Physiology. Then we shall consider the rise of several schools of Psychology in the late 19th and early 20th centuries and, ultimately, the decline of these schools during the second half of the 20th century. The latter period has been characterized by an increasingly eclectic and interdisciplinary approach to Psychology.

In addition to chapters from the text (p. 4), there are supplementary readings listed on pp.5-6 of the syllabus. These readings are articles or excerpts from writings by psychologists who will be discussed in class.

Power point slides are posted in the Resources section of the sakai site corresponding to the class topics. They do not cover all the course material and are not a substitute for attending class.

Evaluation: Your grade will be based on the number of points you accumulate.

	Points
2 hourly exams (50 points each)	100
Final exam (50 points)	60
Abstracts from 6 articles (4 pts. each)	24
2 Class surveys (8 points each)	16
Total possible points	200

(Note: There is no extra credit.)

Exams: Each exam will consist of multiple choice questions. If you miss an exam, a make-up will be given providing that you have an acceptable excuse (e.g., illness with documentation). The TA will handle make-up exams.

Class surveys: There will be 2 class surveys. The first will be given during the initial class; the 2nd later in the semester. I will announce the 2nd one in advance.

Abstracts: There are 10 supplementary readings for the course. Submit an abstract of any 6 of the readings. Each abstract should summarize the key points the author makes and be no longer than 1 page. Abstracts are due on the dates listed next to the Readings below. Abstracts are to be emailed to me AND to the TA NO LATER THAN NOON ON THE DUE DATE. (The date and time that appears in the email I receive will be used to determine whether the abstract is on time or late.) Keep a copy of your email submissions. Each abstract is worth 4 points; you will receive full credit if the abstract covers the main points of the reading; half credit if your abstract contains errors or significant omissions; no credit if it is late.

Grades: My preference is to use the following scale:
 A = 180 and above (90%), B+ = 174-179 (87%), B = 160-173 (80%), C+ = 154-159 (77%), C = 140-153 (70%), D = 120-139 (60%). However, I may adjust the scale depending on class performance. The final grade cutoffs will be no more stringent than those listed here.

Sakai site: The Resources tab at the course Sakai site contains some of the power points that will be covered in class. Titles of power point files correspond to topics discussed in class (p. 4). I suggest you print them and bring them to class to use as a foundation for the material covered in class. Announcements will be posted at Sakai for any changes that may occur in assignments or classes during the semester. Exam and assignment scores will be posted at Sakai gradebook.

Classroom behavior: To minimize disruption to others and to protect my fragile ego, please do not use your phone or computer for tasks unrelated to the course. Feel free to ask questions and add relevant information from other classes.

Integrity: In addition to the University's integrity policy as described below, you may not have your cell phone, computer, or any papers and books on your desk during an exam. If you need to use the restroom during an exam, leave your phone with me or the TA.

Rutgers Academic Integrity Policy:

<http://academicintegrity.rutgers.edu/academic-integrity-policy/>

Violations include: cheating, fabrication, plagiarism, denying others access to information or material, and facilitating violations of academic integrity.

All suspected cases of cheating and plagiarism will be referred to the Office of Judicial Affairs. The university's policy on Academic Integrity is available at <http://academicintegrity.rutgers.edu/academic-integrity-policy>

Rutgers definition of plagiarism:

Plagiarism is the use of another person's words, ideas, or results without giving that person appropriate credit. To avoid plagiarism, every direct quotation must be identified by quotation marks or appropriate indentation and both direct quotation and paraphrasing must be cited properly according to the accepted format for the particular discipline or as required by the instructor in a course. Some common examples of plagiarism are:

- Copying word for word (i.e. quoting directly) from an oral, printed, or electronic source without proper attribution.

- Paraphrasing without proper attribution, i.e., presenting in one's own words another person's written words or ideas as if they were one's own.
- Submitting a purchased or downloaded term paper or other materials to satisfy a course requirement.
- Incorporating into one's work graphs, drawings, photographs, diagrams, tables, spreadsheets, computer programs, or other nontextual material from other sources without proper attribution.
